PEOPLE WILL TALK.

You may get through the world,
But it will be very slow,
If you listen to all
That is said as you go;
You'll be worried and fretted,
And kept in a stew—
For meddlesome tongues
Must have something to do,
And people will talk.

If quiet and modest,
You'll have it proposed
That your humble position
Is only assumed—
You're a wolfe in sheeps clothing,
Or else you're a fool,
But don't get excited—
Keep perfectly cool—
For people will talk.

And if you show
The least boldness of heart
Or slight inclination
To take your own part,
They will call you an upstart,
Conceited and vain,
But keep straight ahead—
Don't stop to explain—
For people will talk.

If threadbare your dress,
Or old fashioned your hat,
Some will surely
Take notice of that;
And hint rather strong
That you can't pay your way,
But don't get excited
Whatever they say—
For people will talk.

If you dress in the fashion
Don't think to escape,
For they criticise then
In a different shape;
You're ahead of your means,
Or your tailor's unpaid,
But mind your business—
There's enough to be said—
For people will talk.

Now, the best way to do
Is to do as you please;
For your mind, if you have one
Will then be at ease
Of course you will meet
With all sorts of abuse;
But don't think to stop them—
It ain't any use—
For people will talk.

BE KIND TO THE AGED.

Age, when whitening for the tomb, is a worthy object of reverence. The passions have ceased—hopes of self have ceased. They linger with the young—and oh, how careful should the young be to reward them with tender affection and with the warmest love, to diminish the chill of ebbing life! The Spartans looked on reverential respect for old age as a beautiful trait of character. Be kind to them who are in the autumn of life, for you know not what sufferings they may have endured, nor how much of it may still be their portion. Do they seem unreasonably to find fault or murmur? Allow not your anger to kindle against them; rebuke them not, for doubtless many have been the crosses and trials of earlier years, and perhaps their dispositions, while in the springtime of life, were less flexible than your own. Do they require aid? Then render it cheerfully. Forget not that the time may come when you may desire the same assistance from others that you render to them. Do all that is needful for the old, and do it with alacrity, and think not hard if much is required at your hands, lest when age sets its seal upon your brow, and fills your limbs with trembling, others may wait unwilling, and feel relieved when the coffin has covered you forever.

THE LORDS POCKET BOOK.

Whose pocket book is that which you carry?' said a friend to a business man, as he drew a well filled wallet from his pocket.

'Why my own, of course. Whose else could it be?' was the prompt reply.

'To whom the pocket book belongs to the Lord, I guess the purse is his also.'

'Well,' said the man thoughtfully, 'I hope I do belong to the Lord, but your remarks throws a new light on this subject. It never hopressed me before, as it does just now, that I am to carry and use this pocket book, My pocket book,' as my Lord directs. I must think this matter out, for I confess honestly I never have looked at it in the light in which you place it.—The Christian Giver.

John Grace was an old itinerant preacher who denied himself worldly comforts, and who suffered persecution for thirty years. On approaching an English village, where he desired to preach, he was taken ill of a fever. A man more human than the rest went to him, and asked him, what he would have. 'Water.' It was brought. He drank and said: 'I shall soon drink of the river, the stream whereof maketh glad the city of God.'

THE MARRIAGE OF GREAT MEN.

John Adams married the daughter of a Presbyterian clergyman. Her father objected on account of John being a lawyer. He had a bad opinion of the morals of the profession.

It is not generally known that Andrew Jackson married a lady whose husband was still living. She was an uneducated but amiable woman, and was mostly devotedly attached to the old warrior and statesman.

John C. Calhoun married his cousin, and their children, fortunately, were neither diseased nor idiotic, but they do not evince the talent of the great State Rights advocate.

Byron married Miss Millbank to get money to pay his debts. It turned out a bad shift.

Robert Burns married a farm-girl, with whom he fell in love while they worked together in a plowed field. He was irregular in his life, and committed the most serious mistake in conducting his domestic affairs.

Milton married the daughter of a country squire and lived with her but a short time. He was an austere literary recluse, while she was a rosy, romping country lass that could not endure the restraint imposed upon her, so they separated. Subsequently, however, she returned and they lived tolerably happy.

Queen Victoria and Prince Albert were cousins, and about the only example in the long line of English monarchs where in the marital vows were sacredly observed, and sincere affection existed.

Shakespeare loved and wedded a farmer's daughter. She was faithful to her vows, but we could hardly say the same of the bard himself. Like most of the great poets, he showed no little discrimination in bestowing his affections on the other sex.

Washington married a woman with two children. It is enough to say she was worthy of him, and they lived as married people should live—in perfect harmony with each other.

John Howard, the great philanthropist, married his nurse. She was altogether beneath him in social life and intellectual capacity, and, besides this, was fifty-two years old, while he was but twenty-five. He would not take "No," for an answer, and they were married and lived happily until she died, which occurred two years afterwards.

Peter the Great of Russia married peasant. She made an excellent wife and sagacious Empress.

Humboldt married a poor girl because he loved her. Of course they were happy.

AN ENTHUSIAST IN HUGGING.

A couple from the country came to the city recently, procured a license and were married in due form. They left on the afternoon train for home. They attracted the attention of every passenger by their lavish display of affection. The young man kept his arms tight around the bride's waist, as if he was afraid she would vanish before he knew it, and she didn't seem to care if he hugged her right along for half a day. She was so terribly homely that everybody wondered how he could love her, and by and by he seemed to think that an explanation would be in order. He borrowed a chew of tobacco of a man near the door, and remarked: 'I'm going to hug that girl all the way home, though I know she isn't purty.' 'I wouldn't' briefly replied the man. 'And that's where you'd fool yourself,' continued the young man. 'When I'm hugging a hundred acres of clean, nice land, with forty head of stock on it, it can make the homeliest girl in the country look like an angel to me.'—Augusta Chronicle.

EFFECTS OF THE CENTENNIAL.—'You will be mine?' urged a fatiful and substantial lover to a Philadelphia girl, recently.

'Oh, no, I won't any such thing,' she answered, archly.

'But why this change?' pleaded he; 'you once felt different toward me.'

'Oh, yes, I know I did,' she replied, 'but I didn't think of the Centennial then, and the chances there'll be to pick up a foreign duke, or prince, or something!'

And as the disappointed youth turned sadly away you could see by his face that there was at least one soul which had lost its enthusiasm for the coming big show.

Leigh Richmond, when traveling in Ireland, passed a man who was a painful spectacle of squalor and raggedness. His heart smote him, and he turned back and said to him:

'If you are in want, my friend, why don't you beg?'

'And sure, isn't it begging that I am, your honor?'

'You didn't say a word.'

Of course not, your honor; but see how the skin is speakin' through the holes of me trousers and the bones crying out through me skin! Look at me sunken cheeks, and the famine that is starin' in me eyes! isn't that begging that I am with a hundred tongues?'

AN ANECDOTE OF JEFFERSON.

Mr. Thomas Kelso of Baltimore, is over ninety, and remembers many of the characters of the earliest days of the Union. Among his reminiscences is the following.

"Shortly after Thomas Jefferson was elected President he came to Baltimore. A number of gentlemen made arrangements to meet him at the Fountain Inn. A large party was gathered at the Inn. They waited and waited, but saw no signs of the expected guest. A gentleman came in with a pair of saddle bags and asked for a room. He was told that there was no room for strangers to-day as the President was expected. Soon afterwards a gentleman walked up and asked for the President. He was told that he had not yet come. 'Why he was seen walking down this way with his saddle bags.' They all went up to the Indian Queen and inquired for Jefferson, but the proprietor knew nothing about him. He said an old farmer with a pair of saddle bags had come there a while ago and taken a room. Upon investigation it was discovered to be Mr. Jefferson. They then begged him to return to the Fountain Inn, where ample preparations had been made for his reception; but he declined, saying he had asked for a room there and they told him they had none. If they could not give a common farmer a room he saw no reason why the President should be more favorably treated. On another occasion, while President, Mr. Jefferson gave a dinner to the foreign ministers. One of the diplomats thought he had been awarded an improper position at the table, and in the morning they determined to call on the President and state their grievances. Hearing of their coming, he sat in his room with his slippers on. When they reached the President's house he put one boot on, and taking the other in his hand, went out and invited them in. 'Take seats, gentlemen, we have no etiquette here; we are all common citizens.' The ambassadors were thunderstruck, and wisely concluded that it would be useless to broach the subject.

BRIEF BUT BRILLIANT.—The two briefest and most brilliant orators above the sod are Dom Pedro, His Brazilian Majesty, and John A. Moore, Esq., of Halifax, N. C.

When the notables of this sweet scented country met the former in the harbor of New York in fawning, set and polite speeches, the old fellow said 'all right, all right.' No tomfoolery for him.

The latter attended as spectator a base ball match in this town. The conquered side asked our friend to present the ball, at the same time handing it to him,

'Who to?' asked he.

'To Capt. R.'

'Oh, certainly.'

'Cap'n here's your ball.'

Capt. R. accepted it with a bow, stepped back and delivered a flourishing oration. The presenter, amazed, pulled off his hat and listened with an intensity that was ravishing.

The greatest exhibition of courage ever yet witnessed is that made by the blushing maiden, when she goes up to the altar in the Heaven directed fulfillment of woman's holiest mission. It is the grand turning point of her life. Her home hallowed with the dearest reminiscences of her joyous past; the holy companionship of mother and sisters; the protecting care of father and brothers; all must be surrendered, must be left forever. The future is unknown to her, and full of a thousand perils. But love is a golden shield, and placing her hand within that of her chosen one, she looks up bravely into his face and pronounces her own magnificent apotheosis to heroism in this sublime utterance: the past has been bright, happy and beautiful; but the future I can trust and share with you.

The old Hebrew cabalistic legend of Lilith, the first wife of Adam, is told by M. D. Conway, in his lecture on the Devil, in language which is as beautiful as a finished poem. She was a cold, passionless, splendid beauty, with wondrous golden hair. She was created Adam's equal in every respect, and therefore properly enough refused to obey him. For this she was driven from the Garden of Eden, and Eve was created, made to order, so to speak, of one of Adam's ribs. Then the golden haired Lilith, jealous, enraged, pining for her first home in Paradise, entered in the form of a serpent, crept into the Garden of Eden and tempted Adam and Eve to their destruction.

A GEM.—Nothing on earth can smile but a human being. Gems may flash reflected light, but what is a diamond's flash compared with an eye flash and a mirth flash? A face that cannot smile is like a bud that cannot blossom, and dries upon the stalk. Laughter is day, and sobriety is night, and a smile is the twilight that hovers gently between them both, and more bewitching than either.

Never report what may hurt another unless it be a greater hurt to others to conceal it.

WIRT AND BURR.

In a sketch of William Wirt the Law Journal gives an account of Aaron Burr's trial: 'Burr's counsel were Martin (a signer of the Declaration of Independence,) John Wickham, and Benjamin Botts; but he was his own most effective counsel, and bore himself with the same self possession, acuteness, and vigor which he would have displayed in a cause to which he was indifferent. Wirt and Ray were the leading counsel for the Government. The foreman of the jury was John Randolph. Among the witnesses was Andrew Jackson. In the bar or spectators set two young lawyers who afterward abandoned the profession of law—the one for that of arms and the other for that of letters, and became respectively the most brilliant soldier and the most celebrated author in this country during the first half of this century—Winfield Scott and Washington Irving. The latter indeed, appeared at Richmond on a retainer of a friend of Burr, who thought that the young lawyer's pen might prove serviceable to the accused. The talent and beauty of Richmond crowded the benches. The Richmond ladies, if we credit Irving, obedient to the scriptural injunction, 'love your enemies,' were on Burr's side during the trial, for he says 'not a lady, I believe, in Richmond whatever may be her husband's sentiments on the subject, who would not rejoice at seeing Colonel Burr at liberty.' Such was the audience to which Wirt addressed the speech that rendered him famous—a speech compounded of a keen logic which commanded the respect of the great Chief Justice, and a pathos which melted the Richmond beauties into tears only less pitiable than those of Blennerhassett's wife, which mingled at midnight with the wintry Ohio.'

AN INCIDENT AT A HUMORIST'S GRAVE.

A little incident connected with the funeral of Charles F. Browne, better known under his nom de plume of Artemus Ward, is related by Mr. Lawrence Barrett, the actor, who was one of the pall-bearers upon that occasion. Poor Browne, as everybody knows, died in London, in the zenith of his popularity as a humorous writer and lecturer, and his death created a profound sensation in literary circles, where he was universally beloved for his charming social qualities and the sparkling brilliancy of his wit and humor. Bulwer Lytton once said that no other American of his acquaintance had ever visited England who possessed in such a marked degree the power of winning the love and esteem of all with whom he came in contact. When the genial humorist was stricken down by the icy hand of death, the club-houses, whose walls had so often resounded with the merriment provoked by his quaint sayings and sparkling witticisms, were thronged with groups of sorrowing friends and admirers, and when the day of the funeral arrived the most distinguished men of the day, including eminent authors, poets, artists, and actors, united in a last mark of respect to his memory. As a part of the services at the grave an open-air discourse was delivered by an eminent divine, and it proved to be an exceedingly dry and elaborate affair, and when it was all over the tired multitude experienced a feeling of general relief. Just as the concourse was streaming out at the cemetery gates an old man, whose flowing white locks and venerable appearance commanded general attention, stepped upon a little grassy knoll, and with a movement of the hand arrested the progress of the passing throng and besought the people to listen to him for a moment. He said that he was from a little country town not far from London, and that when he left home on the previous day his old wife's last request was that he purchase for her before his return every one of the books that 'Artemus Ward' had written; and now that he had reached the city he found the author dead and his body consigned to the tomb. And then followed a tribute to the humorist's memory, so simple, so unaffected, and, withal, so touchingly eloquent that it moved every heart and moistened the eyes of every person within the sound of his trembling voice. The tired and dusty throng forgot their fatigue as they gathered around the venerable speaker, and in his humble eulogy they found a sincerity more appropriate than the cold and polished diction of the pulpit orator to whom they had just listened. The incident was a simple one, but it served to illustrate the wonderful affection which the masses of the people entertained for him whose short mission was to light us with a genial glow of humor and cheerful fancy, the dull monotony of everyday life."

An absent-minded editor having courted a girl and applied to her father, the old man said: 'Well, you want my daughter; what sort of a settlement will you make? What will you give her?' 'Give her,' replied the other, looking up vacantly; 'Oh, I'll give her a puff.' 'Take her,' replied the father.

A school boy just got his face fixed to sing 'Let us love one another,' when a snowball hit him in the mouth, and so confused him that he yelled: 'Bill Sikes, just do that again, and I'll chaw your ear off.

What is that which no man wants, which, if any man has, he would not part with for untold wealth? 'A bald head.'

We speak of 'here and hereafter,' but man's life is an ever-present here, an everlasting now. The hereafter is every turning into here; the future is ever becoming now.

Wishes and desires that we ought not to gratify, we can turn to account for our good, if we will arrest their hurtful outward flow, and, by controlling, make of them sources of inward fortification.

WHINING.

There is a class of people in this world—by no means small—whose prominent peculiarity is whining. They whine because they are poor; or, rich, because they have no health to enjoy their riches; they whine because they have 'no luck,' and others prosperity exceeds theirs; they whine because some friends have died, and they are living; they waine because they have aches and pains, and they have aches and pains because they whine, and they whine so one can tell why. Now, we would like to say a word to those whining persons. First, stop whining—it is no use, this everlasting complaining, fretting, fault-finding and whining. Why, you are the most deluded set of creatures that ever lived! Do you know that it is a well-settled principle of physiology and common sense that these habits are more exhausting to nervous vitality than almost any other violation of physiological law? And do you know that life is pretty much as you make it? You can make it bright and shiny, or you can make it dark and shadowy. This life is only meant to discipline us—to fit us for higher and purer state of being. Then stop whining and fretting, and go on your way rejoicing.

HOW GIRLS ARE MADE PRETTY.

School and Home says: The Hindoo girls are graceful and exquisitely formed. From their earliest childhood they are accustomed to carry burdens on their heads. The water for family use is always brought by the girls in earthern jars, carefully poised in this way. The exercise is said to strengthen the muscles of the back, while the chest is thrown forward. No crooked backs are seen in Hindostan. Dr. Henry Spry, one of the company's medical officers, says that this exercise of carrying small vessels of water on the head might be advantageously introduced into our boarding school and private families, and that it might entirely supersede the present machinery of dumb-bells, back-boards, skipping-ropes, &c. The young lady ought to be taught to carry the jar, as these Hindoo women do, without ever touching it with her hands.' The same practice of carrying water leads to precisely the same results in the south of Spain and in the south of Italy as in India. A Neapolitan female peasant will carry on her head a vessel full of water to the very brim over a rough road and not spill a drop of it, and the acquisition of this art or knack gives her the same erect and elastic gait, and the same expanded chest and well formed back and shoulders.

WHAT THE MICROSCOPE REVEALS

A learned man tells us of an insect, seen with the microscope, of which twenty-seven million would only equal a mite.

Insects of various kinds may be seen in the cavities of a grain of sand.

Mould is a forest of beautiful trees with the branches, leaves, and fruit.

Butterflies are fully feathered.

Hairs are hollow tubes.

The surface of our bodies is covered with scales like fish: a single grain of sand would cover one hundred and fifty of these scales, and yet a scale covers five hundred pores. Through these narrow openings the perspiration forces itself like water through a sieve.

Each drop of stagnant water contains a world of living creatures swimming with as much liberty as whales in the sea.

Each leaf has a colony of insects grazing upon it like cows on a meadow.

Yes, even the ugliest plant that grows shows some remarkable property when closely examined.

'George, my darling George, promise me one thing,' said the young bride of only a month, as she threw her arms around her husband's neck and gazed anxiously into his face. 'What is it precious?' he asked as he drew her to his bosom. 'Promise me dear, George, that you will not become a Presidential candidate.' 'Why, my darling, that is asking a good deal,' he replied, and his countenance darkened. There are Jones, Smith, and Brown, and, in fact, all the best people—they are candidates. You want me to be somebody, don't you?' 'Yes, yes, George, I do, I do,' said the young wife, bursting into tears; 'but all the newspapers will tell how big my feet are, and you know folks never think that anybody's feet may be good shaped if they are large.'

'Brethren,' said a speaker, 'when I was a boy I took a hatchet and went into the woods. When I found a tree that was straight, big and solid, didn't touch that tree; but when I found one leaning a little, and hollow inside, I soon had him down. So when the devil goes after Christians; he don't touch those that stand straight and true, but takes those that lean a little and are hollow inside.'

A young man who knows all about it states that his experience has taught him that a flirt is a fool who delights in cooling fools, and the fool who is fooled by such a fool is the finished kind of a fool.

Two women of Michigan have sent Mrs. Grant two dollars to help toward paying off the national debt, and now it only remains to resume specie payments all on us.

Hillsborough Recorder.

WEDNESDAY.....JUNE 7. 1876.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,

Gen. W. R. Cox,

OF WAKE.

DISTRICT CONVENTION.

A Convention of the Democratic Conservative voters of the Fourth Congressional District will be held in the city of Raleigh on Tuesday the 13th day of June next, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress and a Presidential Elector, and selecting two delegates to the St. Louis Convention. A full attendance is earnestly desired. Each county will be entitled to one vote for every one hundred votes and fractional part over fifty given for Merrimon in 1862.

By order of the Distrtict Executive Committee.

H. A. LONDON, Jr.,
March 31st. Chairman.

MAJ. ENGELHARD.

The friends of Maj. Engelhard are numerous in the State. He has made them by the qualities which go to make up the gentleman, and the endowments necessary for the useful man, for all of which he should be in grateful remembrance, now that he is placed in the position to need some of those marks of gratitude he has so fully deserved. For years he battled manfully for the Democratic party, and in a district where to led a forlorn hope. He has been mainly instrumental in revolutionizing that district and making victory almost certain where it had long been impossible.

We endorse heartily the proposition of our correspondent and hope he will be nominated as Secretary of State.

THE CONVENTIONS.

Our Delegates go to Raleigh, the one instructed to assert the renomination of Joe Davis, the other unpledged in their choice for the candidate for Governor. This is exactly right. Joe Davis deserves this much of confidence. In the other, Orange ought to defer to the will of others and confer with them in so grave an occasion. There is something preposterous in the idea of one county out of ninety six endeavoring to control the choice of all the others.

This plan works harmony. There is no dispute about Davis, and there can be no contention about the Governor. Each county will take cordially the choice of the Convention.

THE OUT-LOCK.

An outlook has been predicated on the action of the present Congress. It has turned into an out-lock only to be determined by the result of the Presidential contest. This is a hard case, for the people may have expected relief from this Congress to which they have looked with a hope sharpened by the experience of the ills of the past eight or ten years. But the Congress is only half empowered. The House is Democratic, but the Senate is able to keep everything at a dead lock. Whatever is done by the House in the way of retrenchment and reform is held in check by a Senate contemptuous in its disregard for popular rights or popular suffering, because conscious of a power begat in the past of a national enslavement, and not yet conscious of that nations right to enfranchisement. Therefore that Senate will stand defiant with the knowledge of Executive endorsement to defy the clamors of want.

Therefore until after the Presidential election, the day of relief must be postponed. Only, the people must see, and must see to it, that they will gain relief only through the triumph of the Democratic party. The Republicans will not give it to them. They are used to their ways. And economy and retrenchment are not of them.

Every man in office under the national government has grown rich by his place. There is no exception. Ribbeson, Secretary of the Navy, went in a poor man. The first month of his service, he deposited in bank on his own account $87,000. Blaine went in a poor man an never rose higher than speaker. He is now worth one million by his own admission. This is the way the peoples money has gone, and yet the people are still asked to defend, support and maintain a party which makes plunder a principle, and economy a crime. Are the people fools that they will be deceived?

Daniel Webster's estate, known as Marshfield was sold for five thousand five hundred and twenty dollars.

The negroes of South Carolina petitions remonstrating against the ratification of the Hawaiian treaty, admitting rice free of duty.

One thousand houses destroyed in Quebec Canada, by children playing with matches.

MAJ. ENGELHARD FOR SECRETARY OF STATE.

EDITOR RECORDER: The friends of Maj. Joseph A. Engelhard feel that his conspicuous services to his State and party deserve recognition. In grateful remembrance of those services they will present him as their choice for nomination to the office of Secretary of State, at the approaching Democratic Convention. Faithful, in the past to every trust, both civil and military, with splendid abilities, large information and unflagging zeal he would discharge the duties of the office in such a manner as to give credit to himself and honor to the Commonwealth. NEW HANOVER.

THE ST. LOUIS NOMINEE.

The Danville Register says: After the Republican nomination at Cincinnati, we shall be better prepared to judge as to the most available candidate for the Democratic side. The course of the Ohio Democratic convention, which seems to place Judge Thurman out of the race, serves to narrow the question in regard to candidates while it complicates the financial aspect of the question. The Democrats now give up the great state of Ohio That being the case New York must be made safe, or the contest will be well nigh hopeless. If Conkling be put in nomination at Cincinnati, there will be but one man who can successfully dispute the Empire State with him, and that man is Gov. Tilden. Against any candidate but Conkling, either Bayard or Thurman could probably carry New York.

In this part of the country, the people are not disposed to contend about the standard bearer. We of course have our personal sympathies, but waive everything for the common cause. To name a President is quite a different task from naming a candidate in a doubtful contest. While we are not troubling much down here over Hendricks, or Davis, or Hancock, our sympathies do go out towards Bayard and Thurman, splendid men that they are; yet just now the course of events seem to point to Tilden as the leader for this contest. He seems to be the one who can hold his own against all comers from the North, even on the question of fidelity to the Union, and who can also show a prouder record than any politician of either party, in the matter of reform; which should be a vital issue in this election. He is the man of all others specially fitted to make war upon the den of thieves.

But in four weeks, the whole horizon may change. New scenes may follow rapidly upon each other. By the assembling of the convention at St. Louis, the Republicans will have played their hand, the issues will be made up and the true line of policy will be clearer than at present.

The Richmond Whig says: Somebody in the Herald is still harping on that 'Old Line Whig' story, who speaks as if in Virginia, Kentucky, and elsewhere in the South, the Whigs were yet a separate party, and only waited the opportunity to declare themselves in favor of some possible candidate other than the Democratic or Conservative nominee. He thinks Bristow would be the man to rally them. All fudge. There is no Whig party in the South now. The Radical took the very best means in the world to prevent any such division in the ranks of the white people of this section as might have been brought about under proper treatment. We are all of one mind here, and it matters little what you call us; opposition to Radicalism is and will be a sufficient bond of union. This cannot be broken by Bristow or any other man,—no matter how much better me may be than his party—that he claims affiliation with or accepts position from the so-called Republican party.

CAPTING SETTLE.

The Wilmington Star says: The Washington Republican informs the public that there is 'a strong feeling among Southern Republicans generally in favor of the nomination of Judge Settle, of North Carolina, to be the Republican candidate for Vice President,' but adds, 'there is good authority for the statement that Judge Settle would not accept the nomination if it should be tendered to him. Because,' says the Republican, 'Judge Settle believes that no man who fought under the Confederate flag should be entrusted with such high honors and duties as those which attach to the office of Vice-President.'

The Star says such modesty affects us to tears. It is doubtless very pleasing to Northern Republicans who want the place, and spend their time ho sling, dervish like, over the 'bloody shirt.' We agree with the Raleigh News in thinking that 'they might forgive this repentant ex-rebel for the fighting he did under the stars and bars. He did the Federal armies mighty little harm, nor did he do that little long.'

Sitting Bull and his Indian warriors removed the scalps from more than three hundred men since the 1st of January, and still the cry is, young men go West.

ORU WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON D. C., June 2nd.

A most ingenious attempt, rivalling even the late burglary plot, to blacken the good name of Mr. Speaker Kerr, has been developed this week. A man named Harney, for years a dependant of Darling collector of New York, has testified that in 1866 when he was a door-keeper of the House, he paid Mr. Kerr $150 to procure the commission of lieutenant in the army for a Mr. Green of New York. Harney has been well drilled in history and makes it very plausible, but every one believes him to be swearing falsely, even Green the man who paid him the money says he never believed that a dollar of it was given to Mr. Kerr. The Speaker denies ever knowing of, or speaking to Harney and even honest republicans consider his denial sufficient. Secretary Robeson has been before the Naval Committee and read a long story under oath, in regard to his connection with the Cattelin. He denies all connection with them, but the documentary evidence against him is rather strong. A man named Mulligan has been testifying against Blaine and he tells a damaging story. He was clerk to Warren Fisher jr. the contractor to build the Fort Smith and Little Rock railroad and says that Blaine sold $480,000 worth of the bonds of that company to his friends in Maine and was afterward compelled to take them back, and that $75,000 of the bonds so sold, the same sold by "Tom" Scott to the Union Pacific road for $64,000. He claimed to have letters verifying his statement. On Wednesday evening Mr. Blaine went to the Riggs House and having obtained possession of the letters to examine them, refused to return them, or to deliver them up the judiciary when asked to do so on Thursday. Blaine claims that they are private letters and do not relate to the bond question which is being examined into and therefore belong to him. The courts have long since decided that when a man writes a letter and deposits in the Post Office, the property in that letter passes from him and Mr. Blaines act is looked upon here as a desperate attempt to save himself by starting the cry that he being persecuted.

The Senate having taken jurisdiction in the Belknap case met as a court on Wednesday, notified the House of its action and adjourned until Tuesday. It is thought that as more than one third of the Senators voted against jurisdiction, Belknap's counsel will let the evidence be taken and not argue the case, in the belief that those who voted against jurisdiction, will vote to acquit on the same ground. If the Senate were in accord with the House Congress could soon adjourn, but the Senate will not agree to the main appropriation bills and there is no telling when an adjournment can be made. The bills are now in this condition. The fortification, Pension, Sioux Indian deficiency, Engraving and printing deficiency, regular deficiency, Centennial, Capitol Grounds and St. Louis custom house appropriation bills are now laws. The Military Academy and consular and diplomatic appropriation bills are in the hands of conference committees who have disagreed. The House has passed the Executive Legislative and Judicial appropriation bill and it has been reported to the Senate with over one thousand amendments. The Indian bill has been reported to the House, and the committee will be ready to report "the sundry civil" and army appropriation bills in a few days. It will be seen that no important appropriation bill except "the Pension" has passed both houses, and it is well understood here that none of them as passed by the House will pass the Senate. All that have been sent to conference committees have shown that no agreement can be arrived at. The House will stand by its proposed reductions, in the number of employees and the government expenses, and the Senate insists upon the old figures. The probabilities are that none of the large bills will be passed by the first of July and that Congress will be in session until the first of August possibly even later than that. The news from Europe indicates a general war on the Turkish question. While we ought not to wish such a thing, if it occurs it will add greatly to our prosperity.

RENO.

London, May 24.—The Times, speaking of Pierrepont's acceptability as United States Minister to England, says: 'But it must be admitted that the appointment does not carry so distinct a meaning as it would have done a year ago, previous to the Babcock trial; nor is it in other ways so discreditable as that of Mr. Dana.' The article concludes: 'In the Babcock affair there is really nothing more than an error of judgment to be alleged against Mr. Pierrepont.'

Atlanta, Ga; May 24.—Hon. J. A. Crawford, at Kingston, Ga; was stung on the head by a bee this morning, and died in two minutes.

Barnwell Court House, S. C; May 25—Last evening the business of the Court of Common Pleas came to a sudden halt, Judge Mather was disposing the cases on the docket with his usual energy and zeal, when he was informed by the colored jurors that they had been without food for the whole day, and could get neither money nor credit. The Judge said to them in reply:

'Under the circumstances, I will be compelled to discharge you, for I cannot keep you here in a starving condition. But you see to what a condition you have brought the country. You are not without blame, for the men in office, responsible for the stoppage of the court, were put there by your votes. Here we are in the month of May; there is no money to pay your judge to pay jurors, to support the prisoners in jail, or pay the other expenses of the county. You colored voters are responsible for this thing, for by your voters the bad men who have brought about this lamentable state of affairs were elected.'

The jurors were then discharged and the Judge will continue the court, to hear such cases as he can try without the aid of a jury.

St. Louis, June 1.—A special dispatch to the Republican from Jefferson City, gives the following as reliable: The canvass of delegates for President shows Hendricks 19, Tilden 10, doubtful 1.

Jefferson City, June 1.—The platform adopted at the Democratic Convention, includes the following: Free schools exempt from all sectarian control, free press, accountable for abuses to the civil and criminal law, preservation of public faith and credit and honest payment of public debt; that we are in favor of a repeal of the resumption act of January 1875, but inasmuch as the National Convention of the Democratic party is to be held within the next 30 days, we deem it inexpedient to adopt any resolutions respecting the currency or finance of the country, but refer the same to such Convention, hereby pledging ourselves to support the platform and to give the electoral ticket of Missouri for it. A resolution instructing the delegates to labor and vote for Hendricks in National Convention, for President, was offered, but the Convention refused to allow it to be read. Great confusion prevailed, but order was finally restored and the Convention quietly Adjourned.

Nashville, June 1.—The platform is for an unconditional repeal, and the substitution of Treasury for National bank notes; no curtailment of circulation, delegation to vote as a unit for Hendricks, who combines the most elements of success. The delegation is nearly all Hendricks men.

Washington, D. C; June 1.—Mulligan desired to make a statement when he arrived here. A note came from Blaine, requesting witness and Mr. Fisher to call at Blaine's house. Witness declined but Fisher went. Blaine called on witness again. Fisher and Atkins were present. Blaine asked regarding private letters which Mulligan had promised to hand back, which he did. Blaine afterwards came to witness' rooms where they were alone, plead for the letters and talked of ruining his family and of suicide. He asked to read the letters again, and witness handed them to him, when Blaine gave him back one and retained and has yet some seventeen letters. After this Blaine spoke of other matters, asking witness how he would like to run a committee or how a foreign consul would suit him?

Blaine made a statement; he has the letters, but the conversation about suicide and consulship is all imagination. Blaine says he consulted two friends and to-day will consult two of the best lawyers whether anything in the letters refer to the matters under investigation, namely, the $40 000 bonds which Scott sold to the Union Pacific.

The effect in the committee room was appalling. Mr. Blaine employed himself in folding an envelope very squarely, and tearing it.

In the Senate most of the morning hour was occupied in reports from committees and pension and claims, or bills of a private nature.

Cincinnati, June 1.—A dispatch from Lincoln, Neb; details the massacre of Captain Stone's company of Cincinnatians for the Black Hills. It was passing the Sand Hills, fifty miles from Red Cloud Agency. It was warm and their coats and weapons were in the wagons. The men were straggling behind. The Indians rushed in, cutting them off. The leaders, Captain Stone and James Woods were the first victims killed, and the bearer of the report declares that not one of the forty-nine escaped.

Washington, D. C; June 1.—Cameron was qualified to-day as Secretary of War, and Taft as Attorney General.

The body found in the river at Jersey City, is not that of ex-Commissioner Burdett, who is still missing.

Mulligan testified that Blaine got $32,500 in first mortgage bonds. The Maine man who bought the bonds paid the money to witness. The bonds were sent by express to Maine parties. Witness gave $40,000 in bonds to Blaine, and paid the rest. The most of the Maine parties paid five thousand cash and got fifteen thousand in bonds. The details of the Mulligan statements authenticate the report telegraphed at noon.

Senate.—A communication was read from the Secretary of War closing with the opinion that it will be well to allow the Signal Bureau to remain under control of War Department. The bill to amend sections 533,556 and 572 of the revised statues, in regard to the judicial districts in Arkansas, Mississippi, South Carolina and West Virginia, passed.

The impeachment was announced. The judgment of the Senate was made overruling the plea of the defendant as to jurisdiction. An order was submitted, that the accused be ordered to plead further or answer the articles within ten days, Carpenter asked for more time, and finally the court adjourned to Monday. Adjourned.

Gratton ex Gov. Graham.

On the 6th of this month persons desiring to hear the Memorial Oration on the life of Gov. Graham can go to Raleigh and return for one first class fare, good for that day only. They will leave here on Mail train at 1.10 p. m. and return that night after the oration on special train.

Tobacco Sales.

Large breaks at the Warehouse on Thursday and Friday, and fine prices were obtained. The prospect of trade here is improving and Hillsboro may be made a competitor for the favor of the farmer.

The Court House fence has become insolvent at the action of the Commissioners. A great part of it, sua sponte, has laid itself flat on the ground.

The Cain building at the Court House corner stands on its legs at last—a wilderness of studding and scantling. It is a large building, and when covered in, will be an imposing mass of lumber.

Strawberries are selling here at 5 cents a quart. They are wild, and very delicious. The cultivated varieties are unknown here. We think their introduction would be a wise reform.

Several lots of wheat about town are ready for the cradle.

Our tobacco factories are in full blast.

The Penitentiary last week received eight convictions from Mecklenburg county. Among them was W. H. H. Houston a man once occupying a prominent position, and a candidate for sheriff. He was convicted for forgery and sentenced for ten years.

Rain Rain.

On Sunday the Country was blest with a fine rain, just such a one as the farmers wanted, copious but gentle. It was enough for the ground, but not too much for necessity. The wheat was not borne down, and is now ripening finely.

Hon. A. M. Waddell.

We are glad to learn that the Convention at Fayetteville expressed its renewed confidence in this gentleman by his renomination for a third term. Mr. W. has been a faithful public servant, and specially useful to his district. So let North Carolina treat all her approved servants.

We are disappointed in receiving any communication in relation to the exercises at Chapel Hill. The accounts found in other papers are too long for use.

The venerable Adam Douglass was in town on Saturday. He is upwards of 90. Orange presents more instance of hale longevity than any other County in the State.

The Maryland and Virginia boundary Commissions were so busy in personal engagements that the work of the Commission is post-poned to a future day.

Our friend of the Tobacco Plant was in town on Saturday, looking so fresh and pleasant, that we concluded the plant was strong and green.

Remember the two Conventions next week at Raleigh.—The Congressional on the 13th and the Gubernatorial on the 14th. Let there be a full delegation to both.

The rain of Sunday did not altogether interfere with services in the Churches.

Death of Col. J. W. Hunt.

We have to record the death of this gentleman which took place in Roxboro on the 29th of May. He was at the time of his death Clerk of the Court of Person County. He was about sixty years of age,—a man much esteemed, and a most efficient officer.

Mr. R. W. Graham, Secretary to the boundary commission returned home on Saturday.

The Commencement was a perfect success. Many ladies and gentlemen attended from this place. The great demonstration of members from all parts of the State is a strong point of the favor in which the institution is held. We expect to present the account of the proceedings by some gentleman who was present. We learn that a number of the Bingham boys enter next Sunday.

The weather last present glorious and genial ripening wheat and oats. The former is considered so far as good as any crop ever known, and fewer causes of complaint often than we have ever heard of. Oats are some irregular, but many farmers are well satisfied with the appearance. Corn makes a good show and altogether the farmers heart seems about to be made glad.

Accident.

On Wednesday, while Mr. I. R. Strayhorn and his younger brother Tom were on the way to Chapel Hill in a buggy, the horse took fright suddenly near Orange Church, and dashed them out violently to the ground. The elder brother was not seriously hurt and only shows his injuries by his limps. Tom was seriously hurt, and at the time of this writing is confined at Chapel Hill. His wounds however are not considered dangerous though accompanied with a painful distortion of one eye.

Valuable Prescriptions.

Rev H. Parks, an esteemed and very worthy minister in the United Presbyterian Church, sends to the press the following valuable prescriptions, and adds.—"I have often used the following prescriptions with entire success, and many say with me they are the best they ever used. The one for small-pox, from an English medical journal, I have never used. I get a paper of the papers for diarrhea and keep by me for family use, and carry a few with me on my trumps. One or two of them always cure. They will save doctor bills.

No. 1. For diarrhea and dysentery. Let each paper have ipecacuanha 2 grains; opium pulverized, 1 grain; calomel, 1 grain; nitre, 8 grains. Take a paper every three or four or five hours, as the case may require.

No. 2. Liniment. Linseed oil, 1 ounce; alcohol, 1 ounce; hartshorn, 1 ounce; tincture of cantharides, ½ ounce; tincture of opium, ½ ounce.

No. 3. To either cure or prevent small pox or scarlet fever. Sulphate of zinc, 1 grain; digitalis, 1 grain; sugar, ½ teaspoonful. Put all in two tablespoonfuls of water, and when well mixed add four ounces of water. Dose—a spoonful every hour.

'La! me!' said Mrs. Partington, beaming mildly through her golden rimmed spectacles, 'women do make such a fuss about impairing boy's clothes. Now, there's Isaac, who hardly goes a day without tearing something. He used to keep me mightily distracted with work till I went and bought me a sewing machine. I was very careful to get one that had plenty of room under the arms, so that when he tore his pants I could put them right under the machine without taking time out of them. The machine is in the rejoining room. Doctor, and I'd like to have you see it.' saying which she led the way to where Ike was discovered seated before a 'Light Running Domestic,' busily sewing the cat up in the good old lady's rag-bag.'

THE PEOPLE WANT PROOF

There is no medicine prescribed by physicians, or sold by Druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as ROSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP for severe Coughs, Colds settled on the Breast, Consumption, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted, can get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that use it. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sold by Dr. O. Hooker Druggist.

AN IMPORTANT CURE BY DR. TUTT'S EXPECTORANT.

We have been informed by Mrs. Williams, grand-daughter of Gen. Israel Putnam, that she suffered for many years with Asthma, accompanied with great difficulty of breathing. Indeed, she says, it prevented her from lying in a recumbent position, and often suffocation appeared inevitable, for which she used TUTT'S EXPECTORANT. The relief was so great that she was encouraged to persevere in its use until every vestige of the painful disease was entirely removed.

"We cannot speak too highly of this valuable preparation of DR. TUTT, and for the sake of suffering humanity hope that it may become more generally known."—Christian Advocate.

STATE NEWS.

The Weldon News says O'Hara, the negro lawyer, was "blanketed" for the Congressional race in the Second district, but Radicals have got him to consent to get out of Brogden's way, by promising that he shall step into the Solicitorship of the 6th Judicial district when the term of the present incumbent expires.

The Asheville Citizen says a friend from Mitchell tells it that the mica fever is high in that locality. Messrs. Heap and Clapp have recently sold a heap of mica in the lump, for $37,500 cash. A Mr. Elliott has taken from a hole in the ground about 20 by 40, over $1,000 worth of the precious stuff, and Messrs. Wilson and Young, Garrett D. Ray, and —— Carson are also getting rich fast.

The Y. M. C. A. of Raleigh, have made arrangements to organize a Sunday School in the Penitentiary.

The Salisbury Watchman says: The best two nominations for the State Ticket we have seen is Calvin H. Wiley and Gen. D. H. Hill for the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction. They are both eminently practical and fit men for the place, and we shall be heartily pleased to see either of them put on the Ticket. Mr. Wiley has contributed more valuable service to the Free School system in the State than any other man who has labored in that field, and has therefore a proved fitness. Gen. Hill's qualifications are undoubted, and being a brother editor we shall be proud to see him honored by a position, the duties of which, if accepted, we know will be performed with conscientious fidelity.

Gov. Brogden has appointed Prof. W. C. Kerr a delegate to represent this State in the National Prison Reform Congress, which meets in New York June 8th.

The News says: The closing exercises of the Peace Institute will take place the 14th and 15th of June. The annual address will be delivered by the Rev. Jacob Henry Smith of Greensboro, on the evening of the 14th, and the night of the 15th, one of those rare and delightful concerts that Peace is so famous for giving will take place.

The Charlotte Observer says: One of the sweetest pinks in all the fragrant bouquets of Republicanism, turned out to be Mr. Chas. E. Dibble, late of Connecticut, late a route agent on the Richmond & Danville Railroad, and later still a route agent on the Carolina Central. He made his first appearance in this city, three or four months ago, anxious for a place, and careless of what it was or how he got it. He borrowed money to go to Washington City to make application for a route agency and succeeded in getting the place of Mr J. M. Turrentine, on the Richmond & Danville Railroad. This did not last long. He was transferred to the Carolina Central, and Turrentine reinstated. His job on the Carolina Central did not last long, but he made good use of his time, by drawing one month's pay twice—one here at Charlotte, and then again at Wilmington. Not only so he got into the proprietors of the Charlotte Hotel for a board bill amounting to $62 and some cents, and gave them an order on the post office here for it. The order was dishonored, of course, and the bill remains unsettled. In addition to this, he owes bar and other bills, and borrowed money, which will run his indebtedness in this city, up to the very snug little sum of $400, which does very well for a stranger, and reflects credit upon the enterprise of the Nutmeg State.

The investigation going on in Washington has revealed the fact that three hundred and fifty thousand dollars were sent to this State by the Radical administration to carry North Carolina in the Merrimon and Caldwell campaign of 1872.

A special to the Wilmington Review, dated Fayetteville, May 31st says, Hon. A. M. Waddell was nominated here this afternoon for Congress from this district on the 80th ballot. Hon. John D. Stanford, of Duplin, was chosen Presidential Elector from this district and the delegates to the St. Louis Presidential Convention are Messrs. F. W. Kercheer, of Wilmington and J. H. Myrover, of Fayetteville as regulars, with Messrs. J. W. Shackelford, of Onslow and J. I. Macks, of New Hanover, as alternates.

A fellow named Robt Winfield, of Tennessee, played a handsome trick upon some of the Asheville merchants, last week, swindling them with counterfeit money and getting genuine money in change.

The Bank of Statesville has ceased to make loans and is winding up. The Statesville newspapers are calling on the monied men of the county to organize a new Bank.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

EAGLE LODGE No 71 F. & A. M.
May 28th A. D. 1876 A. L. 5876.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Master of Eagle Lodge to prepare resolutions of respect upon the death of brother Andrew C. Murdock, do respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, It hath pleased almighty God to remove from our midst, brother Andrew Craig Murdock by the hands of death, thereby depriving this Lodge of an old and useful member, and this community of a useful servant and citizen and his family of a kind and indulgent father and friend. Yet, seeing in it the hand of Providence, and recognizing His Will; we humbly bow in submission to His decrees, knowing them to be wise and just. And we hope that our brother has been removed from a life of trouble and suffering to one eternal and blest.

Therefore be it Resolved,

I. That, His brethren will long and affectionately remember the many good traits which endeard him to the fraternity of which he was a worthy member.

II. Resolved; That we hereby offer our condolence to his daughter in this her hour of grief and affliction.

III. Resolved, That the brethren of Eagle Lodge wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days, and that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes.

IV. Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the daughter of our deceased brother, and the Hillsboro Recorder be requested to publish the same.

SIZE OF FARMS.

There are two sides to every question and it is an easy matter to make assertions when no proof is expected. We place together two views of the question; How much land shall we cultivate? take from two of our most recent exchanges.

Small farms make near neighbors; they make good roads; they make plenty of good schools and churches; there is more money made in proportion to the labor; less labor is wasted; everything is kept near; less wages have to be paid for labor; less time is wasted; more is raised to the acre; besides, it is tilled better; there is no watching of the hired hands; the mind is not kept in a worry, a stew, a fret, all the time. There's not so much fear of drought of weather, of no frosts, of small prices. There's not so much money to be paid out for agricultural implements. Our wives and children have time to read—to improve their minds. A short force is soon carried, and the work on a small farm is always pushed forward in season. Give us small farms for comfort; aye, and give us small farms for profit.

If you should ask me whether a General could beat command 5,000 or 50,000 men, I should tell you that it depended upon his skill, talents, capacity, ect. Now, why will not the same rule apply to farmers? One man will carry on a farm of fifty acres, be perfectly contented, and happy, keep out of debt, and be just as well off as if he were rich. Another man could no more stay on fifty acres of land than a tempest could stay in a tea kettle. The restless Yankee generally wants elbow room. We must adopt style of farming suited not only to the soil, climate and markets in our several locations, but a style adapted to our individual habits, preferences and temperaments.

Lay out your farm so tait will be suited to a variety of crops. As the general farm is improved let the ornamental keep pace with that seems to pay more in dollars and cents, and in a few years your home will form an attract ion for every passer-by. The necessities of life need hardly take our entire first attention. The ornamental may be made to go hand in hand with it and thus serve to lighten what would otherwise be more serious labor.

ROOT CROPS.

When an Englishman comes to this country and inspects our system of farming, he is forcibly struck with the fact that root crops are but little grown here for feeding to live stock, while in England they would think it impossible to get along without their "swedes" and "mangolds," in other terms, sugar beets. We consider a man a very poor farmer who does not grow root crops for his cattle, horses and sheep. A peck or a half bushel of carrots, or sugar beets, fed to cows per day is better as milk-producing food than double their value in meal. Horses that are not worked much in winter will thrive on hay and carrots, with a little grain when they work. Then the flat Dutch turnips may be sliced up for the sheep; and hundreds of bushels may be grown among your corn, sowed immediately after the last hoeing, and brushed in—that is—cut a few brushy branches of trees, lash them together, and hitch on your horse and go between the rows, and November 1st you will be able to gather tons of turnips that have cost but a mere trifle. We manage our carrot seed as follows: We mix it with sand, then place in the sun by day, and near a fire at night, applying warm water occasionally; and as soon as it begins to germinate we spread it where it will dry, and immediately sow the mixture sand and all; and before the weeds have time to grow the carrots are up.

IMPROVEMENT IN SPINNING COTTON.

By a new process, which has been sufficiently tested to show its practicability and value, the seed cotton may be taken from the field and, without the use of the gin, brought directly to the card. Here a machine known as the Clement attachment, which occupies the position of the usual "licker-in," takes the cotton and cleans it from the seed, dust, trash and motes, and delivers it in an untangled condition to the card from which it emerges through the "doffer" in a continuous roll called a "sliver." This improvement in the manufacture of cotton will be of great benefit to the Southern planters, as it makes the use of the gin and the press unnecessary, so soon and so far as the manufacture of yarns direct from the seed-cotton can be established. Then the natural connection between the planter and the spinner will be effected, and instead of the raw material being exported, a partly finished product, the yarn will be. Mr F. E. Whitfield, Sr; has several of these machines already in successful operation at Corinth, Miss.—American Agriculturist.

THE VALUE OF SUNFLOWERS.

A few stalks of this grand, rank growing plant, in the garden or near the house, are highly beneficial in many respects; they are great promoters of good health by freely absorbing malarious gases in the air and purifying it. The seed is a splendid food for poultry in the winter and spring. And best of all, the seed of sunflowers is the most healthy food that can be given to horses in winter and spring; half a pint a day keeps them in health and spirited, with sleek coats, and more animated, than any other food. It prevents heaves and other diseases. All places with the least tendency to bilious difficulties, should have numbers of sunflowers growing about the residences. Then they are great favorites with little birds—yellow birds, blue birds, wrens, and many others—which will leave fruit and berries to perch upon and pick sunflower seed. It may not be generally known that the seed of the sunflower is the most infallible remedy yet discovered for the speedy cure of founder in horses. The direction which we glean from a brief article upon the subject in the Essex Banner, says: "Immediately on discovering that your horse is foundered, mix about a pint of the whole seed in his food, and it will perfect a cure."

CURING CLOVER.

Clover is not a grass at all. It belongs to the same order of plants as the peas, but nevertheless, it is used as a forage crop and is treated as the grass crops are; it is fed out, and it is cut for hay to be stored as food for live stock in the winter season. Owing to its nature it is one of the most tender plants to handle in curing for hay. It needs to be dried rather in the shade than in the sun, and the texture of the hay should how a certain oregon sra.ho than crispness. Th ag-in, it should be so cured that even its co or may be retained if possible. To do this it is important that it should be cut before the b'ossom has formed the seed pods.
